

THE WORLD OVER

CERTIFICATES REDEEMED

EDMONTON.—Redemption by the provincial government of no more than $140,000 worth of Prosperity Certificates is a matter of considerable rejoicing in government circles. The certificates, which were issued on August 5, and had the first one cent stamps affixed on the back on August 12, came in for the first redemption on September 10, 11 and 12 and hereafter will be redeemed on the Thursday, Friday and Saturday consequent upon the second Wednesday of each month.

LOST FLIERS FOUND

FORT RELIANCE, N. W. T. — A bit weary but happy, Flight Lieutenant Sheldon Coleman and Aircraftman Joseph Alan Forsey were ready Friday night to climb into an aeroplane to be taken to Edmonton to recuperate from effects of being lost 31 days in the barren lands of the North West Territories.

Showing no "detrital reaction" to their 30 days of being lost and forced to augment their slim rations with barren land berries, the two Royal Canadian Air Force men were under the care of army medical men. Soon they will be flown 900 miles south to Edmonton.

Suppose of the long vigil for rescue planes after they had been forced down through lack of fuel on Point Lake, 250 miles north of here, was described by the airmen Friday.

SKETCHES OF NORTHERN ROAD

EDMONTON.—Draft sketches of the proposed winter road route from McCurray, Alta., to Goldfields Lake, were forwarded Thursday by the department of Interior at Ottawa by Hon. W. A. Follow, Alberta Minister of Public Works. The sketches were prepared by department officials in consultation with Col. J. C. Cornwall, the engineer expected to supervise the work.

Joe Louis, the Detroit "Brown Bomber" packed sufficient dynamite into his gloves to hammer out a five-minute knockout over Al Ettore in a scheduled 15-round bout at Philadelphia on Tuesday night.

WHEAT YIELD 232 MILLION

The wheat production of Canada for 1936 is estimated at 232,979,000 bushels in a crop report issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. Of this amount 220,903,000 bushels is spring wheat and 12,076,000 bushels is fall wheat. The spring wheat crop of the prairie provinces is estimated at 216,000,000 bushels.

The total wheat crop of Canada last year was 277,239,000 bushels.

The bureau estimates the 1936 oat crop at 274,693,000 bushels, nearly 120,000,000 bushels under the 1935 figure.

Barley production is placed at 74,376,000 bushels, about 5,000,000 bushels less than in 1935.

INSPECTOR BAVIN PROMOTED

Inspector E.W. Bavin of the Calgary sub-division of the R.C.M.P. has been promoted to the important position of chief preventive officer at Ottawa, to assume his new duties Oct. 1. Inspector Bavin joined the R.C.M.P. in 1908. He served overseas with the artillery during the war. When he returned to Canada in 1919 he joined the Alberta Provincial Police. His first inspection was at Lethbridge, for a few years and then he was transferred to Calgary, where he was inspector when the provincial police disbanded, and Inspector Bavin was retained in his position under the Dominion force.

RELIEF TO PURCHASERS OF SCHOOL LANDS

In an interview granted to the press by Hon. C.C. Ross, Minister of Lands and Mines, he mentioned the problems confronting the purchasers of School Lands. Many of the buyers at a time when the financial returns from farm produce was very much in excess of today's prices. The Minister stated that since taking charge of the Department he has been giving considerable thought to the situation and having decided upon the necessity of granting some specific form of relief, action has been taken by proclamation to reduce the interest on the undue instalments of purchase from six per cent to four per cent, and the interest on arrears from seven per cent to five per cent.

The Minister stated that the most outstanding part of the proclamation deals with the assistance that will be given to the purchasers who bought at the peak of prices and who find that through the depletion of their resources, they are unable to comply with the terms of the contract. Such purchasers will have the right to make application to the Registrar of the Farmers' Creditors Arrangement Act for a compromise, and the Minister explained that the Department would write each contract holder as to how the purchaser should proceed if he wishes to take advantage of the legislation.

Sales that have been cancelled since September 30th, 1930, may be reinstated if the land is available, and such settlers will have the same privilege to bring their cases before the Registrar for a compromise or a reduction in the terms of the contract.

The Minister pointed out that his action is consistent with the stand taken by the Government at the recent session in dealing with the reduction and settlement of outstanding debts. Those settlers wishing to obtain advantage of these concessions would be advised to be well advised to take immediate action so that they may receive the full benefit offered by these amendments.

MINERS ON STRIKE

Miners of the Peerless Carbon Collieries and the "Fox" mines walked out on strike last Saturday and at the time of going to press on Wednesday there has been no compromise, as far as could be ascertained.

LITTLE ITEMS OF LOCAL INTEREST

Fine, warm weather seems to have returned, although a few showers occurred the first of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Graham and family moved to Oils on Sunday.

Mr. Alec Todd, wife and family were Three Hills visitors on Sunday.

Claude Cressman of Calgary arrived on Wednesday and has taken over the Texaco Service Station at Carbon.

Henry Kary at the Central Service Station has moved his house from the north side of the road to the south side, next to his service station.

Garnie Snel first the first of the week for a visit with relatives in Eastern Canada.

No RIFLES MAY BE USED AGAINST DUCKS

Mounted Police officers point out that a recent amendment to the Game Act of Alberta makes it illegal to use rifles when hunting waterfowl. Youngsters may be under the impression that the use of .22 rifles does not constitute an offence, but it is pointed out that the Act provides a fine as well as confiscation of rifles found in use.

CANADIAN WHEAT SUPPLY

With a crop of 233 million bushels and a carryover of 109 million bushels the total Canadian wheat supplies are around 342 million bushels. Domestic requirements will be at least 100 million bushels, which leaves 242 million bushels available for export and carryover. If Canada exports 200 million bushels of wheat during the crop year, the carryover will be down to 42 million bushels which may be considered a normal figure. Exports of 42 million during the month of August totalled 224 million bushels. It may be pointed out that at least until the end of the year monthly shipments will average out as good if not better than the August figure. Last year Canada's exports totalled 254 million bushels. World conditions are on a somewhat basis this year and there should be no trouble in clearing out Canada's surplus wheat supply.

No one thing in life makes a greater reward of a man than debt.

Designed to accommodate more than a dozen big aeroplanes, a large hangar at the Calgary military barracks site will be commenced early in October. The hangar which will be 200 feet long and 85 feet wide, will cost approximately $125,000. The building, which will be more than 100 feet high, will be situated at the municipal airport, will be located on the north side of the landing field. Specifications have been issued to local contractors. Tenders for the construction of a smaller building to cost about $12,000 will be called for at Ottawa on September 18. It will be utilized as a veterinary stable and will have stalls for six horses as well as containing a blacksmith's shop.

YOU MAY WIN A VALUABLE PRIZE

We want a slogan for Ogilvie Royal Household Flour and for the best ones submitted during this contest will award prizes as outlined above. Read the simple contest rules and send in your entry. You may win a valuable cash prize.

There's a treat in store also for you if you've never tried this popular brand of flour—Royal Household. It is a flour of the first quality—good for breads and pastries. It's triple-tested—tested for wheat quality before milling, tested for flour quality during milling, and before for baking quality during milling, all before you buy. Get a bag today.

IN CASH PRIZES FOR THE BEST SLOGANS FOR ROYAL HOUSEHOLD FLOUR

216 PRIZES TO BE AWARDED!

Here Are the Simple Rules:

1 Use a plain sheet of paper and write out your slogan. Write your name and address clearly at the bottom and on the other side of the sheet write the name and address of the store where you purchase your Royal Household Flour.

2 You may submit as many slogans as you desire, but with each slogan send the words "Royal Household" cut from the small label in every bag of Royal Household Flour. Or you may send in a reasonably accurate facsimile of same.

This is What You Do

Merely write a slogan of not more than ten words relating to Royal Household Flour and send it to describe this favorite brand. It's easy to do. Here are a few examples: "But by Ogilvie Test!" "Made by the Master Millers" or "A Guarantee of Uniform Baking Results!" You may send in as many slogans as you wish, providing you follow the simple rules below.

3 This contest will close on November 30th, 1936. All entries must be postmarked not later than that date.

4 Mail your slogans to "The $1450 Prize Contest, The Ogilvie Flour Mills Co. Limited, Winnipeg, Canada."

5 Contest is open to all residents of Canada except the employees of The Ogilvie Flour Mills Co. Limited and their families.

6 In case of a tie the prize money will be equally divided. The committee of judges is composed of three independent, disinterested persons in no way connected with The Ogilvie Flour Mills Company Limited and their decisions will be final. No correspondence will be entered into and all slogans submitted will become the property of The Ogilvie Flour Mills Co. Limited.

RETAILERS

You share in this, too. The retailers named by the first six prize winners will each receive $85.00 cash.

Question Is Settled

Scientists Come To Conclusion Animals Have No Souls

Scientists working with delicate apparatus in a Kensington laboratory have settled a question that has caused endless controversy in every part of the world—

Have animals souls?

Do our pets survive after death?

Dr. Nambor Fodor, an internationally-known psychological research expert, asked Mr. B. J. Hopper, M. Sc., one of the most brilliant of British physicists, to begin experiments that would answer the question.

Now, after experimenting on mice, birds, frogs and cockroaches, both scientists issue this statement: There is no evidence that animals have souls or any existence after death.

Argument on the subject suddenly increased when Dr. R. A. Watters, director of the Dr. William Bernard Johnston Foundation for Psychological Research at Reno, Nevada, started the world with his claim two years ago:

That he had photographed "souls" leaving the bodies of animals killed in a specially-constructed chamber.

His photographs, he said, showed the shadowy "souls" of the animals which resembled the physical bodies in shape.

Dr. Nambor Fodor started experiments at the International Institute for Physical Research, Kensington.

"The results," Dr. Nambor Fodor told the Sunday Chronicle recently, "were disappointing. We were unable, despite the most thorough equipment, to confirm the American claims which had been hailed by Spiritualists as proof of the existence of survival."

CHAPTER V.—Continued

I told myself then that if I saw you again that it would be a sign to me that at last I had found the girl I wanted. Heaven knows I've turned the town upside down looking for somebody who could look the part, as well as act it. When I saw you again tonight, well, you know what I said— "Three times and out." I guess you didn't understand. He heard over and looked her straight in the eyes. "I don't know who you are, nor anything about you, except for the essential things I asked you. I don't want to know anything else. The past is gone. Your life begins this minute."

"You want to play—to be envied; loved... I'll make you the talk of the town—do a better press job than any movie actress ever heard of. It's a natural. You'll start out with an advantage no alien in history ever had. Your reputation is already made for you! All you'll have to do is live up to it! It won't be with a "shin" pain, either. It will be among the "best people" in town, those with whom you'll mingle, on whom you'll cast your spell. Your very wish shall be realized. You are beautiful — which of course you know. I'll provide the clothes and all the stage scenery. Every woman in town will be envious of you; every man will want to make love to you. Play up to it. Play!

He paused to let his words sink in. To Starr it was still a part of that unreal dream she was sure was not yet finished. But he looked real enough. His voice was no flimsy of her imagination, his earnestness sincere. He pressed his advantage, seeing her reluctance.

"All I ask is that you keep your name in the headlines—not of course with any remotest connection of a Starr Ellison that was. That girl's dead from this minute on—dead and buried. A new one, the famous, or infamous author, has arisen in her place."—He could not, or would not, see the keen look in Starr's eyes. "As he made his emphasis, nor could he know of the choke in her throat that kept her from crying out. "Dead and buried!" he had said. He was interested only in his own scheme. "Starr Ellison, the dead name, must be kept on the front page, if possible, right from the go-off. I don't care how. It won't matter. What will be of account will be the every mention you get. You'll make a fortune for me—and I will pay you accordingly."

He stopped and studied her a moment more, nodded his satisfaction. "Yes, you look the type all right—know it from the start—with those mysterious eyes of yours and all... Why should we cook up some kind of a story—you gave me an idea with those few words of Arab gab you said in a small matter—leave all that to me. The important thing is that you grasp your role. If you haven't by any chance read the book I'll tell you that my 'Play-diff' is a symbol of blatant sex appeal, beauty without emotion, without a soul! Do you understand? Do you think you can live the part?"

Could she? Dared she try? Oh, yes, she understood, and the understanding was rather staggering. The bold, devil-may-care, social-climbing Michael Fairbourne was ashamed of the book he had authored. "He wanted to hide behind the skirts of a woman—so that his precious reputation could go on!"

Starr was to help him make a fortune so that he could marry the proud aristocrat, and she was to sacrifice her own personality—he didn't care the flick of a wrist about that; he had said so in no unmistakable terms. She was to quit being the Starr Ellison she had known for almost twenty-three years and allow herself to evolve into a glamorous fiction character, a creation of the pen of Michael Fairbourne. Who was ashamed of it.

She flung up her head proudly, in that gesture her father had so often likened to the disdainful haughtiness of his beloved ancient Egyptian priests. She wanted to tell him—no, many things. Then she wilted. The realization of everything came back to her; things she had forgotten—the six months of life—Tut-Affen-Ra—Ama-Sun.

Michael Fairbourne wanted her to do this thing. Well, why not? Six months of life, after all, were all she had left. She would have no future in which to harbor any lingering regrets. She had rallied against the fate which condemned her to be a drab, falling star. This man was giving her the chance to flash, through those last six months, a flaming meteor. It could be Fate—an answer to her defiance of the Egyptian gods and their curses. To do as he asked meant that she could drink deep of the gay wine of life. In her few months she could crowd in a lifetime of thrills. Delfin destiny in a reckless round of play. Surely she was not to be denied that, she who was doomed?

A strange excitement possessed her suddenly. Her cameo features glowed. She said, impulsively: "I can do it!"

Michael's hand came across the table. A big warm hand clapping her cold small one to seal their bargain. She lifted her lashes to look at him out of her long, mysterious eyes. It didn't seem just exactly right. She must make some protest. After all, if they were to be so intimately associated, would it not be better if she confessed to him a few things. She said softly:

"But after all, we're strangers... Why should we tell each other so far? You know nothing of me..."

He flung up his head, smiled enigmatically, but the hardness in his tone was not so noticeable. "I thought we'd passed that. But what does it matter? Strangers—yes, perhaps. But do any of us ever truly know each other? Even so, we've lived in close companionship all our lives! Aren't they lovely souls—all of us? Strangers!" The one brief glimpse he allowed her into his inner mind passed instantly. Once again he was the coldly calculating business man. He mentioned then, as though it were an afterthought:

"It's only fair to tell you that the job won't last forever. It may not last long at all. That's rather up to you—and to me, I suppose, as your manager—press agent. Public fancy is fickle. You will be 'Play-diff' only as long as people are interested in the book. It may possibly be but a few months. Then you will have to go back—wherever you came from."

A dagger of ice stabbed at Starr's heart. Her great black eyes assumed that wistful, haunting expression, that suggestion as of looking upon things remote and uncertainly, which was part of her greatest beauty.

She murmured as though to herself: "A few months will be enough."

CHAPTER VI.

"We've got to have a background for you," Michael had said, not in the least interested that Starr might have a perfectly good one, ready-made. And so he proceeded to furnish her with one which would have made an excellent plot for some other book he might some day write. Which suited Starr excellently. In this new role she didn't want to be reminded of the Starr Ellison of tragic days, nor would she have cared to be identified back with the Starr Ellison who was the notorious "Play-Diff."

She entered into all Michael's scheme enthusiastically, surprised at herself that she no longer shrank from all his talk about Egypt and Egyptian things. Her colorless life with the priestess on a vase in the William: Steady? Why he's almost motionless.

THE MONEY CHANGERS

Cohen and his family sat down to dinner on Sunday. To his three boys, Cohen said: "Now, children, which of you would want a nickel instead of meat for dinner?"

Each of the three decided in favor of the cash settlement, so Mrs. Cohen put the meat away. Then she brought in a pie and put it on the table. "Now, my children," inquired Cohen "how many of you want a nickel's worth of pie?"

Speaker—Any fool can see that!
"Well, I can't."
"Well, nearly any fool!"

Boas—Rafe, did you go to the lodge meeting last night?

Rafe—Nah, nah. We done have to postpone it.

Boas—How was that?
Rafe—De Grand All-Powerful Invincible Most Supreme Unconquerable Vastitude done got beat up by his wife.

"I wuz out to de Washington's to a bridge party las' night and wuz de secon' prize."

"What wuz de secon' prize?"

"I got to kiss de hostess."

"Mah goodness, what wuz de fust prize?"

"A dime."

It's a fine thing to be a gentleman, but it's an awful handicap in an argument.

Elevator Competition

The business of handling Western grain is not only the most highly regulated but also the most competitive business in Canada.

All country elevators, whether Line elevators or Pool, compete for business. Competition is as keen amongst Line elevators as it is between Line and Pool elevators. The service given by elevator companies is honest and efficient, as it must necessarily be.

The Alberta Pool advertisements refer to their competitors as a "family compact." There is not and never has been any "family compact" among grain companies any more than there is between Line and Pool elevators.

It is the habit of the Pools in their advertising for competitive business to claim credit for every improvement in agricultural conditions and to blame their competitors for the burdens that remain, whether they arise from world conditions, national conditions or geographical conditions, for which the Line companies are no more responsible than the Pools. Their claim is untrue and unfair.

The Line elevators are as keenly interested as any other organization in a good price for the farmer, in his prosperity and in the improvement of the external and internal conditions that affect his welfare.

THE MIRROR OF PROGRESS

The local weekly is the mirror of local progress. It is a veritable beacon light, hailing the visitor, the stranger and telling him more subtly than any other criterion, the status of the community. For the local weekly is essentially local first. It tells its subscribers what other subscribers are doing. It writes the records of local politics, local education, culture and religion. It tells the story of local organization and its relation to the outside world. It gives the faithful even if affectionate picture of local events in business and social life. It is today endeavoring to interpret the world beyond in local terms.

It is not enough for the people of a community where many know many, to simply know, by hearing or seeing, what is happening around them. They must have the written record! And only the local weekly newspaper gives them the record. It is the most intimate of "our ain folk"—Es.

mate, the most human publication on earth! Therefore, it should, and can have the most influence for good. The local weekly announces the births of the future readers. It tells of their childhood birthday parties. It portrays the scenes of their church picnics and their Christmas concerts, year after year. It heralds forth the momentous decrees of their passing the entrance examination. It registers whether they go to university, buy a farm, or open a store. It is pleased when they return home, after a sojourn in some distant place. It regrets when they go away again. It rejoices with them in their triumphs. It grieves with them in their defeats. And so the weekly newspaper goes on, from one vigilant year to another, following its people through their careers, writing their record of good, or leaving it unsaid, all gathering in and piling up, in permanent story form, of the times and fortunes of "our ain folk"—Es.

Economical Housewives

There was a day when the housewives bought the far-away "bargain" in the belief that it was good business to save a few pennies. But experience taught them a few things. Today's housewives do not buy blindly. They examine the article first and when satisfied with the product they pay a fair price at home. It is economical to make your purchases in
